What this certificate shows

Sample Learner completed The AI Foundation Challenge and passed its final assessment on 11 October 2026 with a grade of Excellent (92%).

TESTED IN THE FINAL ASSESSMENT

- Writing clear prompts and checking AI output before acting on it
- Turning AI drafts into true, customer-ready offers, posts and replies
- Designing, testing and costing a repeatable workflow or automation
- Scoping, publishing, user-testing and launching a small project
- Analysing data, building a spreadsheet model, a report, slides and a pitch
- Choosing the right tool for a job, and spotting when AI is the wrong one
- Judgement: protecting private data, deciding what to trust and publish
- Reading a flow, applying a rule and working the arithmetic behind a decision

HOW IT WAS ASSESSED

A 20-question assessment drawn at random from a bank of 85 questions: typed short answers, workflows to put in order, tasks to match to the right tool, and scenario questions. It is marked automatically, the same way for everybody; the pass mark is 60%. A learner who does not pass practises and sits a different paper after 24 hours.

THIS IS A SAMPLE

This is a sample. It shows what a real certificate looks like, and it was never issued to anybody. Scan the QR code or open <https://www.itsolutionsint.com/bn/academy/certificate/ITSI-CERT-SAMPLE/> to see how a certificate is checked: a real one opens a page like it, with its holder's own name, grade and date. If an ID is not found there, it is not a genuine certificate.
